Case No. 12-cr-00111-EMC-1ORDER DENYING DEFENDANT'S
PETITION FOR WRIT OF AUDITA
QUERELA

Docket No. 371

Case No. 12-cr-00642-EMC-1

Docket No. 195

Pending before the Court is Mr. Wise's petition for a writ of audita querela or, in the alternative, relief pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2255(e). Having reviewed the papers filed, the Court hereby DENIES Mr. Wise's petition.

I. DISCUSSIONA. Petition for Writ of Audita Querela

“Audita querela, literally ‘the complaint having been heard,’ is a common law writ used to attack a judgment that was correct when rendered, but that later became incorrect because of circumstances that arose after the judgment was issued.” Carrington v. United States, 503 F.3d 888, 890 n.2 (9th Cir. 2007); see also Doe v. INS, 120 F.3d 200, 203 n.4 (9th Cir. 1997) (explaining that, while coram nobis is “used to attack a judgment that was infirm at the time it was rendered for reasons that later come to light[,] [a]udita querela [is] used to attack a judgment that

1 was correct when rendered but later [is] rendered infirm by matters arising after its rendition").
2 "A writ of audita querela is not an available remedy where the claims raised would be cognizable
3 in a § 2255 habeas petition. Rather, common law writs such as audita querela and coram nobis
4 survive 'only to the extent that they fill "gaps" in the current systems of postconviction relief.'"
5 Carrington, 503 F.3d at 890.

6 Mr. Wise is not entitled to a writ of audita querela. The bulk of Mr. Wise's petition
7 focuses on issues that the Court addressed in denying Mr. Wise's first motion for relief pursuant to 8 28 U.S.C. § 2255. See Docket No. 209¹ (order) (addressing Mr. Wise's contentions that defense
9 counsel, Mr. Wolf, was improperly appointed and provided ineffective assistance). There is no
10 "gap" to fill here. Furthermore, the fact that the Court denied Mr. Wise's subsequent motions for 11 relief as successive § 2255 petitions did not create any gap. The Ninth Circuit has expressly held 12 that "the statutory limits on second or successive habeas petitions do not create a 'gap' in the post-
13 conviction landscape that can be filled with the common law writs." Carrington, 503 F.3d at 890.

14 Mr. Wise contends that the Court (as well as the government) improperly characterized his 15 subsequent motions as § 2255 petitions. See, e.g., Mot. at 3, 11 (arguing that he was not attacking
16 the underlying conviction but rather challenging the integrity of the post-conviction review
17 process). The Court has already rejected this contention in prior orders. See, e.g., Docket No. 359
18 (Order at 2 n.1) .

19 To the extent Mr. Wise argues that he is entitled to relief because Ms. Boersch previously
20 represented him in post-conviction proceedings and now works in the U.S. Attorneys Office, the 21 Court also addressed that matter in a prior order. See Docket No. 370 (Order at 2) (rejecting 22 conflict-of-interest argument after reviewing declaration filed by Ms. Boersch).

23 B. Petition for Relief Under § 2255(e)

24 The general rule is that a motion under 28 U.S.C. § 2255 is the 25 exclusive means by which a federal prisoner may test the legality of 26 his detention, and that restrictions on the availability of a § 2255
27 motion cannot be avoided through a petition under 28 U.S.C. §
28 2241. The one exception to the general rule is what we have called

1 the “escape hatch” of § 2255[(e)]. The escape hatch permits a
 2 federal prisoner to “file a habeas corpus petition pursuant to § 2241
 3 to contest the legality of a sentence where his remedy under § 2255
 4 is ‘inadequate or ineffective to test the legality of his detention.’”

5 Stephens v. Herrera, 464 F.3d 895, 897 (9th Cir. 2006) (quoting 28 U.S.C. § 2255(e)²); see also
 6 Jones v. Hendrix, 599 U.S. 465, 478 (2023) (explaining that “the savings clause [in § 2255(e)]
 7 preserves recourse to § 2241 [habeas relief] in cases where unusual circumstances make it
 8 impossible or impracticable to seek relief in the sentencing court, as well as for challenges to 9 detention other than collateral attacks on a sentence”).

10 Section 2255(e) is not an avenue for relief for Mr. Wise because, as noted above, the Court
 11 addressed the bulk of his arguments in its order denying his original § 2255 motion. Furthermore,
 12 “[t]he general rule . . . is that the ban on unauthorized second or successive petitions does not per 13 se make § 2255 “inadequate or ineffective.”” Stephens, 464 F.3d at 898. Finally, the Ninth
 14 Circuit has held that “a § 2241 petition is available under the ‘escape hatch’ of § 2255 when a
 15 petitioner (a) makes a claim of actual innocence, and (2) has not had an ‘unobstructed procedural
 16 shot’ at presenting that claim.” Id. (emphasis added). In the case at bar, Mr. Wise does not claim
 17 actual innocence. See Mot. at 20 (admitting that his “claim is not one of factual innocence”); see
 18 also Stephens, 464 F.3d at 898 (stating that, “[t]o establish actual innocence, [the defendant] must
 19 demonstrate that, in light of all the evidence, it is more likely than not that no reasonable juror
 20 would have convicted him”)). Furthermore, as indicated above, Mr. Wise has had unobstructed
 21 procedural shots, whether he is asserting, e.g., improper appointment of his defense counsel,

25 _____
 26 ² Section 2255(e) provides in relevant part as follows:
 27 An application for a writ of habeas corpus in behalf of a prisoner
 28 who is authorized to apply for relief by motion pursuant to this 29 section, shall not be entertained if it appears . . . that [the] court has 30 denied him relief, unless it also appears that the remedy by motion is 31 inadequate or ineffective to test the legality of his detention.

32 28 U.S.C. § 2255(e).

1 ineffective assistance of counsel, improper characterization of his requests for relief as successive
2 § 2255 motions, and/or conflict of interest on the part of Ms. Boersch. His claims have been
3 addressed on the merits.

4 II. CONCLUSION

5 For the foregoing reasons, Mr. Wise's petition for relief is denied.
